Stormwater is water from the rain and snow that flows across the ground and pavement and seeps in the ground and drains into storm sewers. Storm sewers are the drains you see at street corners. Stormwater "goes bad" when the following things get mixed in with it:

Vehicles drip fluid on to the road that rain carries into the storm sewers.

Pet waste can also get carried.

Cleaning and lawn chemicals are also washed away into the ground and

All of the yucky stuff finds its way to the creek, streams and fresh water sources.

And those fresh water sources keep fish, plants, and All OF US healthy! This is the water we drink!
